What is a Regional Education Liaison Officer?
The Regional Education Liaison Officer, or REDLO, is a qualified, experienced teacher who assists Defence families with matters relating to education.
The REDLO provides information, advice, referral and specialised assistance to Service members and their families, the ADF and State and Federal education authorities.
REDLOs are located in each State and Territory and have the responsibility for the provision of educational advice and information in that State/Territory.

How can a REDLO assist you?
- Providing advice and information on education services and resources;
- Assisting parents and students to be better prepared and confident when transferring to a new school;
- Liaising with schools and education authorities about mobility and other issues relating to Defence;
- Linking you with other REDLOs;
- Providing information about Defence education allowances;
- Connecting you with special education providers;
- Providing advice on educational opportunities available to spouses;
- Contributing to education policy affecting Defence families.

In summary, a REDLO can assist you by providing you with educational support. Just contact or visit a REDLO.
